

Part XV. Application Libraries

Application libraries refers to libraries that are typically used exclusively in the development of stand-alone applications and not in the development of libraries.

- Boost.Log is a logging library.
- Boost.ProgramOptions is a library to define and parse command line options.
- Boost.Serialization lets you serialize objects to, for example, save them to and load them from files.
- Boost.Uuid supports working with UUIDs.

Table of Contents

62. Boost.Log

63. Boost.ProgramOptions

64. Boost.Serialization

65. Boost.Uuid